
Pre-AP English 2 Planning Guide: Using SpringBoard

Using this Guide

The overall purpose of this guide is to provide guidance and suggestions for using SpringBoard as a companion to Pre-AP model lessons and assessments. Lesson Overviews highlight shared and/or alternate content between SpringBoard and Pre-AP, suggest which Pre-AP Learning Checkpoints to use, and provide suggestions as to which SpringBoard content to use beyond Learning Cycle 3 in each unit.

As indicated by the course map (pp. 18–19 of the teacher resources), Pre-AP units include a set of optional model lessons that address a portion of the total instructional time of the Pre-AP course. Course planning includes combining those model lessons with additional lessons designed by the teacher using available curricular resources. Schools that select SpringBoard as a primary curricular resource have access to lessons and corresponding student materials within the SpringBoard English 2 book that are in line with the Pre-AP unit sequence for the full year of instruction.

The first group of lessons in each SpringBoard unit are designed to provide a foundation of skills similar to those found in the Pre-AP model lessons, though the Pre-AP model lessons may contain different texts or content. These overlaps and differences are noted in this guide. The SpringBoard lessons suggested beyond the Pre-AP model lessons serve to continue and extend the learning, while maintaining the overall unit goals and preparing students for success on the Pre-AP performance task.

Unit and Lesson Overviews

Unit Overview: The unit overview outlines the big picture of the unit goals, learning objectives, assessment opportunities, and standards addressed. There is space for you to articulate any additional goals, essential questions, or key concepts and skills for the unit.

Lesson Overviews: The lesson overviews provide an instructional grid for each unit showing the instructional resources, assessments, and differentiation and practice options from both Pre-AP and SpringBoard. Since the Pre-AP lessons do not comprise a full day-by-day curriculum for the entire year, the overviews include Learning Cycles 1–3 and corresponding assessments from the Pre-AP model lessons along with suggestions for how the SpringBoard curriculum can be used along with them.

Pre-AP Unit 1: Moves in Argument: Appreciating Writers' Choices

Unit Overview:

Opening Lessons (Pre-AP Lessons 1.1–1.15 OR SpringBoard Activities 1.2–1.9)

During the first weeks of this unit, students are immersed in the study of argument. After writing their own brief arguments, they then analyze the variety of ways writers, cartoonists, and even poets assert and support their claims. Students' written work progresses from identifying and analyzing a single rhetorical move to analyzing an entire argument.

Continuing Suggested Lessons (SpringBoard Activities 1.10–1.14; Embedded Assessments 1 and 2)

Students continue and expand their study of argument through targeted SpringBoard activities. Students examine the structure and techniques of oral arguments and study a formal debate. Students then apply what they've learned throughout the unit by engaging in collaborative research as they prepare for and participate in a debate.

Key Concepts and Skills:

- Critical reading of print and nonprint arguments
- The writing process
- Analytical and argumentative writing
- Meanings of words in context

- Figurative language
- Precise language
- Academic conversations
- Collaborative presentations
- [Additional key concepts and skills as determined by the teacher]

Assessment Types

Suggested Assessments

Pre-AP Learning Checkpoints

These short, multiple-choice formative assessments ask students to demonstrate their classroom learning with texts not previously encountered. They are automatically scored in Pre-AP Classroom with reporting to provide insight and inform instructional planning decisions.

At least one learning checkpoint is required as part of Pre-AP Course Audit. We have suggested Learning Checkpoint 1 for this unit.

SpringBoard Embedded Assessments

These performance-based assessments are scaffolded within the instruction of a SpringBoard unit. They often support the skills needed for the performance task or other elements of the Pre-AP Framework.

Unit 1 Embedded Assessment 1: Creating an Argument is suggested as practice for students before completing the Performance Task.
Unit 1 Embedded Assessment 2: Participating in a Debate is suggested at the close of the unit.

Pre-AP Performance Tasks

These performance-based assessments ask students to write an analysis of a text not explicitly taught in class. They can be administered on paper or in Pre-AP Classroom.

Unit 1 Performance Task: Analyzing an Argument. Suggested timing is the close of the unit.

Unit 2: Persuasion in Literature: Reading Fiction Through an Alternate Lens

Unit Overview:

Opening Lessons (Pre-AP Lessons 2.1–2.12)

During the first weeks of this unit, students expand their study of argument in Unit 1 by exploring how literary characters assert their persuasive powers. Students will closely read and deliver the dialogues among characters in four works of fiction and drama, noting how the characters' language demonstrates some of the same persuasive elements that they studied in Unit 1. Students will also discover how authors use rhetorical situations between or among characters to represent larger cultural influences or conflicts at work in the world.

Continuing Suggested Lessons (SpringBoard Activities 2.3–2.17; Embedded Assessment 1)

Students build on their exploration of fiction and the way that authors can use literature to illuminate cultural conflicts as they launch into reading novel Things Fall Apart. In the novel study, students will examine the interactions between characters, setting, and plot, and they'll be introduced to the archetype of the tragic hero. They'll also have the opportunity to research the historical and cultural context of the novel and read an interview with the author, Chinua Achebe before writing a literary analysis of the effects of the cultural conflicts on one character. If there is time remaining, we recommend Activities 2.18–2.20 to extend their learning around short narratives.

Key Concepts and Skills: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Critical reading of fiction and drama • Analysis of rhetorical moves of characters and authors • The writing process • Writing a literary analysis 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Precise language • Effects of word choice • Dramatic readings and interpretations • Academic conversations • [Additional key concepts and skills as determined by the teacher]

Unit 3: Voice in Synthesis: Entering a Conversation Among Works of Nonfiction

Unit Overview:

Opening Lessons (Pre-AP Lessons 3.1–3.18 OR SpringBoard Activities 3.1–3.8)

In the first three weeks of this unit, students' work focuses on strengthening their analytical reading and writing skills so that they can develop and assert their evidence-based opinions with greater confidence and clarity. Students read and evaluate a variety of print and nonprint texts on related topics. They examine how multiple sources speak to one another, then learn to synthesize those sources to develop their own original arguments.

Continuing Suggested Lessons (SpringBoard Activities 3.9–3.19, Embedded Assessment 2)

Students continue their study of synthesis as they embark on a research project, moving through all stages of the research process as they investigate an environmental topic of their choice. They'll complete a position paper, and, finally, they'll work collaboratively with a group to deliver a multimedia presentation of a proposed solution to an environmental problem.

Key Concepts and Skills:

- Critical reading and analysis of nonfiction print and nonprint texts
- Analysis of how different texts present the same topic
- Examining the influence of historical contexts
- The writing process
- Analytical writing
- Writing a synthesis argument

- Determining word meanings through context and outside resources
- Academic vocabulary in complex texts
- Conventions of standard English
- Structured academic conversations
- [Additional key concepts and skills as determined by the teacher]

Assessment Types

Suggested Assessments

Pre-AP Learning Checkpoints

Short, multiple-choice formative assessments that ask students to demonstrate their classroom learning with texts not previously encountered. They are automatically scored in Pre-AP Classroom with reporting to provide insight and inform instructional planning decisions.

At least one learning checkpoint is required as part of Pre-AP Course Audit. We have suggested Learning Checkpoint 1 at the end of this unit.

SpringBoard Embedded Assessments

Performance-based assessments scaffolded within the instruction of a SpringBoard unit. These assessments are aligned to state standards. They often support the skills needed for the performance task or other elements of the Pre-AP Framework.

Unit 3 Embedded Assessment 2: Presenting a Solution to an Environmental Conflict is suggested after the performance task is given.

Pre-AP Performance Tasks

Performance-based assessments that ask students to write an analysis of a text not explicitly taught in class. They can be administered on paper or in Pre-AP Classroom.

Unit 3 Performance Task: Writing a Synthesis Argument. Suggested timing is prior to the SpringBoard Embedded Assessment.

Unit 4: Purpose in Poetry and Prose: Analyzing Works that Praise, Mourn, or Mock

Unit Overview:

Opening Lessons (Pre-AP Lessons 4.1–4.10)

In the first weeks of this final unit, students explore poetry through the lens of how poets' purpose and tone affect the way they craft poems to achieve their intended effect. By studying a collection of poetic works that praise, that mourn, and that mock, students discover the power of poetic language and the ways in which language can often serve multiple functions and convey multiple meanings. As students analyze poetic works and language, they will also learn to present their analyses in the writing of analytical paragraphs and an essay of poetry analysis.

Continuing Suggested Lessons (SpringBoard Activities 4.12–4.19; Embedded Assessment 2)

Students continue their study of texts that praise, mock, and mourn through reading a graphic novel excerpt and a short story before crafting and reflecting on their own piece of creative writing. They'll end the unit by studying and performing a scene from Antigone. As they study Antigone, students will have the opportunity to draw connections between the play, other texts they've read this year, and the world.

Key Concepts and Skills:

- Critical reading and analysis of a collection of poems
- Analysis of how poets convey a speaker's purpose and tone
- The writing process
- Analytical writing
- Effects of word choice in poetry
- Precise language

- Conventions of standard English
- Collaborative research summaries and presentations
- Choral reading
- Structured academic conversations
- [Additional key concepts and skills as determined by the teacher]
